Session Summary

AWS Community Day Ahmedabad 2026 was a full-day technical conference organised by AWS User Group Ahmedabad with the Professional Activity Committee of IEEE Gujarat Section as the Community Partner. The event brought together developers, cloud architects, AI practitioners, DevOps engineers and students on a unified collaborative platform. The conference focused on translating advancements in Agentic AI, Generative AI and production-grade AWS architectures into practical, enterprise-ready solutions, with emphasis on governance, observability, scalability and secure cloud implementation.

The conference featured keynote addresses by global AWS community leaders, including Maria Encinar, Bhuvanewari Subhramani and Ashita Prasad, along with other AWS experts, who explored the transition from Generative AI to structured, policy-driven Agentic AI systems. Through discussions on the AI Development Life Cycle, scalable LLM deployment and governance frameworks, the speakers illustrated how enterprises can transition from experimentation to production-ready AI systems, while parallel tracks reinforced cloud excellence and operational discipline.

Beyond the technical sessions, the conference encouraged meaningful networking, sponsor engagement and peer collaboration, thereby strengthening the regional AWS ecosystem. A formal felicitation ceremony acknowledged the contributions of speakers and organisers, and the event concluded with a vibrant Garba celebration symbolising Gujarat's cultural pride and the unity of the technology community. Overall, the conference delivered a structured and impactful experience of technical depth, collaboration and community-driven growth.

In alignment with this institutional collaboration, Professional Activity Committee, IEEE Gujarat Section formally nominated the following five members to represent the committee during the conference:
